French Offensive in Woerw
Is Generally So Regarded.

RUSSIANS ADVANCING EAST.

Czar's Troops Now Hold The Principal Chain of The Carpathians.

London, April 12.—The French offensive in the Woerw, it is generally believed, is the prelude to a big general effort by the allies in the west.

Paris claims continued progress in the Woerw movement, but Berlin claims all French attacks have been repulsed. With the two general staffs in direct conflict, it is difficult to gauge the results, but military experts here express the conviction that the Germans must send reinforcements to strengthen their wedge, which penetrates to St. Mihiel and which is being attacked on both flanks. They assert that as soon as this movement begins the allies will strike at the point thus weakened and perhaps at the whole line.

The Russians in the east, like the French in the west, apparently are making progress in the capture of important points before undertaking a general forward movement. They now hold the whole principal chain of the Carpathians and at some points are descending the southern slopes and are approaching, if they are not already in the Uzok valley, south of the pass of that name.

The allied fleet has, according to unofficial reports, been bombarding the Dardanelles forts from the gulf of Saros. This doubtless is being done to prevent the Turks from repairing the forts, for it is not believed here that the big attacks will be resumed until the land forces arrive.

Unofficial reports also continue to come in regarding the gun firing off the Norwegian coast on Wednesday night last, concerning which the admiralty has made nothing public. The Scandinavian papers are convinced that a sea battle has occurred, although they variously describe it as a battle between British and German cruisers and a chase by British or German submarines.

DEFICENCY IN RAINFALL

Since the First of the Year Exceeds Four Inches, According to Weather Bureau.

According to the Cincinnati Weather Bureau, the deficiency in precipitation, rain and melted snow since the first of January, 1915, is 4.22 inches up to Monday afternoon of this week. This deficiency has been created since the first of February, the precipitation during January being above normal. As the normal rainfall during February and March is less than three inches, it may readily be seen that a drought prevailed during those months, which if it had occurred in the growing months would have done immense damage to crops. As it is however, the drought has been a real advantage, having put the ground in fine condition for plowing and having enabled most farmers to finish this work.—Grant Co. News.

Suicide at Trenton.

Edw R. Thompson, aged about 58, extensive land and stock dealer of Trenton, committed suicide at his farm two miles from town about noon Sunday. When found he was dead, lying beside a barn, with an empty pistol by his side and a hole in his temple, death having been instantaneous. He leaves a wife and two grown children.

State Hospital New Buildings Erected at Cost of $40,000.

HAVE NOW BEEN OCCUPIED.

Double Dining Room For Patients, and Nurses'
Home.

London, April 12.—The new dining room and the new nurses' hall at the Western State Hospital are now completed and have been occupied. The dining room is located in the big north court, connecting the two wings. It is one-story, with two rooms seating 500 each, and patients from the entire main building are fed in them, males on one side and females on the other. This will, of course, increase the capacity of the wards from which dining rooms can be removed.

A balcony between the two dining rooms is provided for the orchestra and there will be music during the meals. The building is comfortable in all its appointments and cost $30,000. It was constructed by the Hancock Co., of Louisville.

The nurses hall is a detached building in the grove, some distance from the main building, where accommodations are provided for the nurses. It is an elegant little home, costing $10,000. It was built by the hospital's own carpenters and has already been occupied.

Kentucky Boy Hercules.

Rupert Kirk Graham, a Madisonville boy who enlisted in the navy at Evansville yesterday, is 17 and is a modern Hercules for his age. He is over five feet ten inches tall, weighs 152 pounds and is well developed.

BASEBALL AT HOSPITAL

Winning Team Organized With
Dr. Sight As the Manager.

The State Hospital baseball team is preparing for a regular season of playing this spring and summer. Dr. Sights has been giving employment to a number of ball players since last winter who are in position to make the team a very strong one.

There are four or five former professional players and the team as organized has much good material. Supt. Sights is the manager, Dr. Robinson assistant manager, Dr. Davis captain and Miss Ethel Sights official score keeper. Phil May is a qualified umpire.

A splendid diamond has been laid off to the left of the buildings, and games have already been scheduled with Dawson, Earlington, Madisonville, Hopkinsville, Crofton, Pembroke, Guthrie and Princeton. Two games have already been played with High School.

FIVE INDICTMENTS

Against Custodian of Elks'
Building at Bowling Green.

Bowling Green, Ky., April 12.—The present grand jury late Thursday afternoon returned five indictments against Thomas Fowler, custodian of the Elks' building, charging him with receiving a package of liquor containing a false label.

Fowler was recently convicted in the county court on a number of charges of having liquor in his possession for sale. There were in all twenty-three cases against him. He appealed to the circuit court. Fowler admits receiving the liquor, but claims he did so as an accommodation to brother Elks.

Total Stock Sales Reported at The Church Hill Grange Sale Friday.

SOME FANCY PRICES PAID.

T. C. Jones Made Largest Sale
and Obtained Highest Prices
For Single Heads.

Following is the detailed report of the personnel of the leading characters in this extraordinary production.

The cast is composed strictly of Clay St. School talent, with the exception of four of Miss Parent's private pupils, two from the High School and two from the Virginia St. School.

The character of "Every Girl" will be personified by Miss Mary Joe Wallace, of Cerulean, a High School girl. "Slang," a bright, catchy part, is taken by equally as bright and catchy a little girl, Belle Alexander, of Virginia St. School, who has justly won an enviable reputation as a reader of more than mediocrity. Miss Alice Merritt will personate "Alma Mater," a lofty, dignified character, led by "Love" and "Loyalty," taken by Misses Elizabeth Cooper and Elizabeth Bassett.

Messrs. Hal Johnson, Walter Page and Davis Waltrip, three bright Clay St. boys, have prominent parts, as "Question Mark," "Doleful Dumps" and "Exams." Master Selden Trimble, as "School Bell," will be sure to be literally the bell of the occasion.

Apart from the play, there will be beautiful choruses and the Princess Orchestra. The chorus of the "Dunes" is worth more than price of admission. Twenty-five cents for grown people and 15 cents for all under 12 years.

ANIMALS TO TALK TO MAN

Noted German Scientist Satisfied That Condition Will Be Reached in the Future.

"Some day a man will talk to his dog and his dog will talk to him. So will the man talk to birds of the air. It will be then that all animal and bird life becomes articulate and a widening of our cosmic horizon, now undreamed of, will result." This was the statement at Los Angeles recently, of R. L. Garner, noted philologist and tutor of Maeterlinck, who has spent 25 years in the wilds of the Congo studying the chimpanzee and the gorilla. From these two animals, Garner believes will be strung the first twin cables from which scientists will hang a bridge on which man and his lesser brothers of the world will meet in oracular converse.

"A dream, you say?" he continued. "Cannot the bee teach us a higher communism, the quick, effective elimination of the unfit and shirk? Cannot the birds tell us their secret of flying? Would we not like to know why the oriole, the oven bird or castle building ant are so much better engineers than we are? I believe the day will come when they will be able to tell us. In many respects the gorilla or chimpanzee is far more civilized than man. You never did or never will hear of either abandoning their wives."

After spending a vacation in Los Angeles Mr. Garner intends to return to the Congo for further study of the animals found there.

PLAN NEW DUBLIN CATHEDRAL

Roman Catholics Likely to Erect House of Worship Worthy of the Irish Capital.

Roman Catholic Dublin's desire for a great city cathedral is likely to be satisfied at last. The present pro-cathedral in Marlborough street has never been regarded as anything more than a stop-gap. The two fine cathedrals in the city, St. Patrick's and Christ Church, are, of course, the property of the Church of Ireland.

Some time ago the corporation acquired a site at Ormond Market, on the northern quays, for the erection of workmen's dwellings. The scheme was never popular and is open to grave objection.

The Roman Catholic archbishop of Dublin has now offered to purchase the Ormond Market area as a site for cathedral at the amount which the corporation paid for it.

The suggestion for a Roman Catholic cathedral at this spot came from Prof. Patrick Geddes, who advocated a new artery of traffic which would bring the two Protestant cathedrals into line with a new Roman Catholic building.

Aroused Painful Memories.

All Farmer Hayseed's hands were in the village choir. At Christmas they used to come round to their master's home, and after much singing, or rather bawling, receive a gratuity. This Christmas being an extremely dark night, they took a stable lantern with them, and arranged themselves on Hayseed's lawn. They had scarcely got through the first verse of "While shepherds watched" when the old farmer's head appeared at the window, and a voice floated through the air. "Say, you chaps," roared the glum-looking farmer, as he threw a handful of money to the peace disturbers, "I'll give my blessing freely if you'll only sing 'Christians, awake,' or 'Ark the herald hangs sing,' but, for 'eav'n's sake, don't e' sing 'While shepherds watched.' Last Christmas, while you were a murderin' that same tune, some villyuns come 'long an' lifted eight of my best sheep from under your bloom'in' noses."

Importance of Home Life.

The re-establishment of the American home is the only remedy for the social evil and the only hope of democracy, declared a speaker at the international purity congress in Kansas City. "The constant shifting of families from one section to another prohibits the long acquaintance among young people through which proper life partners can be selected," the speaker said. "Young people are thrown into contact with strangers, become bold and practice deceptions. As a result, marriage is arranged on a guess; the deceptions are discovered and lead to the divorce court and all too often to immorality."

Cost of Living in Wartime.

Data published in the Statistische Korrespondenz are figured out to indicate the price of wheat in Berlin, at the end of August, was 9% per cent above the July 31 price, and that the advance was 16% per cent at the end of September and 26½ at the end of October. Rye had advanced 11½ per cent in August, 21% per cent in September and 30½ per cent in October. In England the Economist's "index number" shows the average price of cereals to have risen from 57.9 at the end of July to 65½ at the end of October, and to 68.3 at the end of November.—New York Post.

Too Many Holidays.

"Pop!"
"Yes, my son."
"What are these dates on the new calendars in red ink?"
"Oh, those are holidays."
"Well, why don't they put all the school holidays in red ink?"
"Wouldn't have enough red ink, I guess, for that, my boy."

LIVE STOCK

MAKING MONEY WITH SHEEP

Cost of Raising Is Small Compared With High Prices They Bring—Increase Fertility of Soil.

The cost of raising sheep is small compared with the high prices they command or with the cost of production of any other farm animal. The Lincoln, Cotswold and Leicester are probably the three largest breeds of sheep—if any favor in size the Lincoln probably has it. A practical breeder says: "If I want a large-growing lamb, to put on the market at six or eight weeks old, I will use a larger breed than the Southdown, which I might use if I was after a mutton chop. For such lambs I am partial to the Oxford, but the Hampshire might give as good satisfaction." Sheep are a good medium for increasing the fertility of the farm of the man of limited means. A dozen ewes, properly cared for, will soon raise lambs enough to stock your farm with sheep. The estimate is that five sheep can be kept on what one cow will consume. With good, bright, wheat straw and half a pound of corn daily, breeding ewes and store sheep will winter nicely.

"No," she said, "we ain't got no eggs. We ain't got no chickens. You see this ground is sandy, and last year the wind blew awful hard and all the grain blew out, so we didn't have no chance to raise chickens. We had no feed and no money to buy feed, so we had to kill our chickens to save their lives. We et 'em. They would have starved anyway."—The Woman Homesteader, in the Atlantic.

Liv-Ver-Lax tones up the system, stimulates the Liver to work in harmony with the other organs. Guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Part of a Farm Flock.

consists in the great number of worthless dogs. The only remedy for this condition in most cases consists in a high dog tax and enforcement of the laws now on the statute books. Owing to the scarcity of reliable help, the raising of market lambs will prove more remunerative than dairying. The farmer and one hand can easily feed and care for a small flock. Have a dog-proof exercise yard and a roomy pen with a hard earth floor. Commence with a small flock. Gradually increase as the business is found profitable.

PROPER TIME TO WEAN COLT

Youngster Should Be Accustomed to Eat Hay and Grain Before Removal—Put Mare on Dry Feed.

The colt should be allowed to remain with the mare until it has become accustomed to eat grain and hay before it is weaned. In nearly all cases it will be best to feed the mare for at least several weeks before the colt is removed with ground oats and wheat bran.

Give the mare a roomy, well-bedded box stall, so the colt can eat beside her. This is one of the easiest and quickest ways of teaching the colt to eat.

Give the colt good blue grass and white clover pasture, but put the mare on dry feed. This will help to dry up her milk without causing a swollen udder.

While it is not necessary to particularly push the growth of the colt, it is very essential that a steady growth be maintained and generally it will pay to feed a little grain, unless the pasture is unusually good. Ground oats and wheat bran, say one to two pints per day, fed dry will promote growth of bone and muscle and a well-developed healthy animal.

Corn is not a suitable food for a young growing animal.

FEEDING ALFALFA TO SWINE

No Better or More Practicable Method Known Than That of Giving Hay to Animals in Rack.

There does not appear to be any more practicable method of grinding hay for hogs than by feeding the hay in a good rack.

A few years ago some enthusiast wrote a story about alfalfa tea, which he said was the finest thing on earth; that the tea extracted all the animal food in the alfalfa and at the same time left the plant food for the soil. By giving the tea to the hogs they would gain their weight, and then you could scatter the stewed alfalfa back on the land. The story found its way into one of the eastern publications and the western experiment stations have been flooded with inquiries ever since.

HARDSHIPS OF THE DESERT

By Comparison the Average Man Will Think His Lot Cast in Most Pleasant Places.

We are almost across the desert, and I am really becoming interested. The difficulties some folks work under are enough to make many of us ashamed. In the very center of the desert is a little settlement called Eden Valley. Imagination must have had a heap to do with its name, but one thing is certain: the serpent will find the crawling rather bad if he attempts to enter this Eden, for the sand is hot; the alkali and the cactus are there, so it must be a serpentless Eden. The settlers have made a long canal and bring their water many miles. They say the soil is splendid, and they don't have much stone; but it is such a flat place! I wonder how they get the water to run when they irrigate.

We saw many deserted homes. Hope's skeletons they are, with their yawning doors and windows like eyeless sockets. Some of the houses, which looked as if they were deserted, held families. We camped near one such. Mrs. O'Shaughnessy and I went up to the house to buy some eggs. A hopeless-looking woman came to the door. The hot winds and the alkali dust had tanned her skin and bleached her hair; both were a gray-brown. Her eyes were blue, but were so tired looking that I could hardly see for the tears.

TWO DEATHS

At State Hospital---One Friday,
Other Saturday.

The World Film Corporation presents "The Seats of the Mighty" at the Princess today, by Sir Gilbert Parker, with Lionel Barrymore and other famous stars.

Robert Moray, a young Englishman, to whom have been entrusted certain letters of Madam du Barry, mistress of Louis XV, goes to join Major Washington's expedition against the French. Moray is captured by the French, and is taken to Quebec by orders of Doltaire, in supreme command over "New France," who had previously been dispatched by La Pompadour, rival of du Barry in the affections of the King, in an effort to secure the du Barry letters.

Moray and Doltaire fall in love with the beautiful Alixe Duvarney, who pledges her faith to Moray, even though he is falsely accused by Doltaire of being a spy. Doltaire, baffled, plans to discredit Moray in the eyes of Alixe, and contrives that he fights a duel with Alixe's brother, Juste. Juste is badly wounded, and Moray, on the orders of Doltaire, is thrown into prison.

Doltaire, still repulsed by Alixe, who remains faithful to Moray, and unsuccessful in his efforts to steal the du Barry letters, causes Moray to be tried as a spy. Moray is sentenced to be shot.

The morning of the execution arrives, but Alixe pretends to accept the suit of Doltaire, and he orders a stay of execution. Moray escapes with the aid of Alixe.

Moray succeeds in joining the English force under General Wolfe, who is moving toward Quebec, and is able to point out to the General a sure means of access to the apparently impregnable city.

The city is stormed and captured, and Doltaire, trapped in company with the wicked Indendante, Bigot, meets his death in the destruction of the latter's palace. Wolfe is victorious, and Captain Moray and Alixe are happily reunited.

Married Too Soon.

Verna McDonald, aged sixteen, of Livingston county, married L. O. Mills Friday in the Paducah jail, where Mills is held on a charge of bigamy. He married the McDonald girl under the impression that he had been divorced from his first wife. The marriage was held invalid and Mills was arrested. A few days ago his first wife did get a divorce. Mills must stay in jail, but he has legalized the second girl as his wife. She is shortly to become a mother.

LETTER WRITTEN ON DAY OF DISASTER.

Murray, Ky., April 12.—Miss Elizabeth Parker of this place, sister of Ensign T. A. Parker, second officer on submarine F-4, which went to the bottom off Honolulu harbor, received a faint gleam of hope on receipt of a letter from her brother that the young man might possibly be alive, but these hopes vanished when, on opening the letter, its contents revealed the fact that the letter was written and mailed on the day of the disaster. In the letter Parker discussed his operations as a member of the crew of F-4 in and around Honolulu harbor besides many other things of more personal interest.

HEART DISEASE

Caused The Death of Mrs. H. Clay Stewart.

Mrs. Missouri Ellen Stewart, wife of Mr. H. C. Stewart, died Friday at her home about six miles west of the city, of heart disease. She was 68 years old and a native of Virginia. The deceased is survived by her husband and several children. She was a member of the Baptist church. The interment took place in the Stewart burying ground in Trigg county, Saturday.

Wealth and Responsibility.

Just before the late Albert A. Sprague died he had the pleasure of seeing a pension system for old employees—long a cherished project—put into effect. Three employees who had served the concern long and faithfully were made the first beneficiaries. January 1, 1914, a large sum, subsequently increased, was set aside as the nucleus of the pension fund. It was determined that the beneficiaries should not be required to contribute. The only requirement is that the beneficiaries should have a service record of at least twenty years and be sixty years of age. The plan not only affords encouragement to the sober and deserving employee, but also illustrates in a striking way that sense of responsibility for wealth and the welfare of those who help create it, which is the best characteristic of the best type of American business man. It is a noble monument to the public spirit of one who was, in so many other ways, one of Chicago's most public-spirited citizens.—Chicago Herald.

Trout Streams in Rockies.
Nearly all of the Rocky mountain forests contain splendid trout streams, and, as most of these are kept well stocked, they will doubtless furnish sport for many generations. Game is also to be found in most of the forests, and in some of them is abundant; but the big game is rapidly disappearing, and many of the species are doomed. Thus the Olympic forest is the last stand of the Roosevelt elk, and the mountain sheep is found only in a few forests. On the other hand, deer and bear are still abundant in many of the forests, and especially in the Blackfeet, Kootenai, Kanisku, Coeur d'Alene and Flathead of Montana. In the Southwest there is still good hunting on the Apache, the Sigreaves and the Tonto of Arizona and in the Mogollon and Gila country of New Mexico.

RUNAWAY KATHERINE

In Her Wanderings She Meets Cupid, Well Disguised but Efficient.

By DAN LA GRANGE.

It was on a spring morning that Miss Katherine Beloit suddenly went crazy.

She had reached the age of nineteen without anybody having suspected her of a weak brain. On the contrary, those who knew her best said she would make her mark in the world, girl though she was. Her parents had planned to go away for a week, and Miss Katherine was to boss the manor house during their absence. A good-by and then the folks were gone. The girl dumped down into the hammock and did some thinking and musing preparatory to going crazy.

"They get ready and go right off as if I didn't count for shucks!" she pouted. "Then go and be hanged, but I shan't always be here to be snubbed. Everybody has a good time but me. Does any one call except on mother? Has ever a young man driving past in an auto stopped and asked what time it was? Of course not! I don't amount to pumpkins, I don't!"

It is generally believed that people go crazy with a whoopee, and make a bee line for the kitchen and the butcher knife, but there are exceptions to the rule. Miss Katherine raised up on her elbow and gave the hammock pillow a swat with her fist.

"I'll run away—that's what I will do!"

And she didn't put the matter off until next Christmas, but walked right upstairs and looked for the oldest things in her wardrobe. She hadn't planned where she was to go nor what she should do, but a sort of instinct told her that she should have old clothes on when she did it.

The cook was singing in the kitchen and the gardener loafing, and neither one of them saw the crazy girl as she passed out of the gate into the road and down the highway forty rods until she got the shelter of a bit of woods. There was an auto coming, but it was yet a quarter of a mile away when she was sheltered.

So far so good. She had gone crazy and had made a fair start toward running away and having adventures galore. Where should she run to? With no money in her purse and a very simple role. Suppose it was that of a hired girl? She'd hire for a week and then skip back home, and there would be incidents enough to keep her relating for a month.

Miss Katherine was about to approach the highway and sit down. This cut her off from the road, and she went farther into the woods. She thought there was another highway back of the woodland, but she did not come across it in half a mile's walk. She was wondering if she should not suddenly regain her senses and return to the house when a man stepped from behind a tree and gave her an awful fright.

He was a bent and withered old man, with hands more like claws, and he eyed her in a malevolent way as they stood for a moment.

"I'm looking for the road over here," he almost whispered.

"You are a liar!" he croaked. "But there—is there is a road?"

"You have come to spy on old John!" he shouted.

"I didn't know you were here."

"You are lying to me. There's a reward of a hundred dollars for me, dead or alive."

"But I don't want it," said the girl in a voice she tried to make wheedling. "All I want is to find the road and go home."

"You can't go!"

She sprang away from him and ran at her best pace, but he had her before she had gone 100 feet. She screamed once, but he raised his fist to strike her, and she was silent. When he took her by the arm to lead her along she realized that he had a fierce grip, and though she tried her hardest to break away he could easily handle her. A few rods from where she encountered him was a brush shanty with a small fire smoldering near by. "Sit down!" exclaimed the old man.

Miss Katherine drew in her breath to scream.

"If you do, I'll hit you!" warned the old man.

The girl had always heard that insane people must be humored, and finding herself in his power and in danger of violence if she provoked him, she forced a smile and a half-laugh and said:

"Oh, well, I don't want to go home yet anyway, so we won't care about the road."

"Isn't that a pretty good house for an old man to build?" he asked after a grumpy silence.

"Indeed, but it is real cute," was answered.

"And I built it in a day."

"Then you are smarter than most men half your age."

"Do you know my name?"

"No, I never heard it."

"It's Cupid!"

The words came out so pat, and the situation was so incongruous, that Miss Katherine burst into a laugh.

"I've brought about a hundred matches between couples, and that's why they call me Cupid."

"Are you out in the woods to hunt up a match for someone?"

"No, I came out here to sleep and listen to the whispers, but as soon as I saw you I knew who I should marry you to."

"Well, who is it?"

"It's Will Irwin. Nicest man in this state. He comes to my son David's, where I live, and he brings me candy. I told him I'd find him a wife, and I have."

It looked as if the old man was going to be easy to get away from, and Miss Katherine also lost her fear of him. She saw that flattery was the thing to use, and she said:

"Mr. Cupid, I think you have a good voice for singing."

"I know I have," he replied. "I was singing a song just before you came, it is called the 'Seven Black Crows.' It goes like this."

And in a voice that was cracked and bent and twisted and full of shingle nails he sang two lines of verse over and over again about seven crows, each with a nose. Then his drawl was stopped by a fit of coughing.

"That was surely a beautiful song, and as a reward if you will come down to the house with me, I will hunt you a better suit of clothes than that," said the girl.

"I knew you'd like the song, and I will go with you. Come." How easy. They headed for the highway, chattering as they went, but were not yet half-way there when the old man clutched her arm with a grip of iron and dragged her back.

"You can't fool Cupid! You are trying to run away from Mr. Irwin. Don't you scream! Don't you dare do it!"

As he pulled her back to the hut he seized a long strip of bark he had been using as a rope, and passed it around under her arms, and then forced her to sit down and made her fast to a small tree. The girl neither struggled nor protested. The old man's mood had changed again.

"I don't want to see you again," he said. "I'll be back in about an hour."

With that he started off at a brisk pace, and was soon lost to sight and hearing. Miss Katherine waited ten minutes and then set out to release herself. She couldn't accomplish it. The bark strip was as strong as a rope, and being made fast behind her the knot was too much for her. Would the old crazy man ever come back?

It was high noon before the cook at Beloit discovered that Miss Katherine had changed her clothes and gone away somewhere, but it was four o'clock in the afternoon before any real alarm was felt. Then the cook didn't know what should be done, and the gardener replied that he didn't. It was finally decided that she had walked to the village and was taking her time about getting home.

At twilight both servants were standing in the middle of the highway in a nervous state when a young man came along in an auto.

"Are you in any sort of trouble?" he asked.

"Did you overtake a young lady coming from the village?" was asked.

"No."

"Then she's been carried off by the Black Handers," wailed the cook.

"What story there was to tell was told, and the young man said:

"I am Mr. Will Irwin. I passed along here this morning about ten o'clock, going the other way. Down there by the woods I saw a young lady turn off the road and go in among the trees."

"It must have been her," wailed the cook.

"And she'd never stay there as long as this if she wasn't hurt or dead," added the gardener.

He was ordered to get two lanterns and then assist in the search. The woods were entered and beaten back and forth. There was shouting and whistling, and just when they were ready to abandon the search they ran upon the captive. She looked up at them in an anxious way.

"I think you are Mr. Will Irwin, and I think you have come for me."

He looked into her face for a few seconds, and then, as he began to free her, he said:

"Sure, I have. This must be Cupid's work."

It turned out to be. As they drove from the church after the marriage they passed a crazy old man sitting on the fence and singing about Seven Black Crows.

Peruna Is A Tonic and Strength Builder So Says

Mrs. Frank Stroebel, R. F. D. 1, Appleton, Wis. Her letter reads:

"I began using Peruna a few months ago when my health and strength were all gone, and I was nothing but a nervous wreck. Could not sleep, eat or rest properly, and felt no desire to live.

"Three bottles of Peruna made me look at life in a different light, as I began to regain my lost strength. While my recovery took nearly four months, at the end of that time I was better than I ever had been before. I had a splendid color and never weighed more in my life.

Mr. Charles Brown, R. R. 4, Box 79, Rogersville, Tenn., writes: "I have tried many different remedies, but have found that Peruna is the greatest tonic on earth, and a perfect system builder

MADE TOO STRONG A BLUFF

Mythical Past That Kansas Man Described Has Been the Bane of His Married Life.

"I made one serious mistake when I courted my wife," said a man in Tom Thompson's hearing. "I told her she was too good for me, and that I had been a pretty bad boy, but if she would only have me, I'd straighten up and live a different life."

"Now, the fact is I wasn't a very bad feller and I just put that kind of a story over because most girls like to think they have great influence for good over bad boys. But after we got married my wife watched me like a hawk. She got confidential with all my old friends and tried to find out all about what I had been doing the years before she came to town, and when she couldn't run anything down on me she became imbued with the belief that I was a very sly knave besides being as wicked as I had led her to believe I was."

"She is suspicious of every move I make, and it's getting on my nerves to such an extent that the peace and quiet of our happy home is in danger. And it's all my fault. I tried to be smart and make her think I was a heliova feller and that I was reforming all for her sake. Now, I believe she would like me better if she could dig up some old scandal on me to justify the bluff I put up to her when I was keeping company with her. But next time I'll know better," he said with a long sigh.—Kansas City Star.

DANGEROUS BIRDS OF PREY

Some American Owls Capable of Carrying Off Young Lamb, So Powerful Are They.

One of the largest of our American varieties of the owl family was shot on a recent Saturday in Connecticut by a German workman. Its wings, spread out, measured four feet eight inches—only four inches short of five feet—from tip to tip. Its claws, hooked like an eagle's, and very sharp, were fully an inch and a half in length.

Such an owl is quite capable not only of seizing and bearing off a full-grown rabbit (which is its regular prey), but a young lamb—and possibly a small baby.

Its flights, silent as the thistle-down that floats in the September air, is swift as an arrow, and the hapless hen or rabbit is first apprised of "what's up" by the plunging of those terrible talons into its quivering flesh and muscles. By the silence of their flight, these nocturnal birds of prey are able to destroy a great many rats.

Rheumatism Cure.

The old-fashioned person who carries a potato in his pocket to ward off attacks of rheumatism may be wiser in what some have termed his "superstition" than we wot. Up-to-date medical science in a recent book on "The Therapeutic Value of the Potato" calls attention to the value of this tuber in the treatment of inflammation of the joint fluid (synovitis), gout, lumbago and rheumatism. The potato is not described as an article of diet, either boiled or baked, nor as German, country or French fried. It could scarcely be professional to prescribe anything quite so much to a patient's liking. But this curative agent may be used raw by means of a bandage, and in some cases—no one can now escape the little syringe—is to be used hypodermically. After all, however, the potato in the pocket will appeal to many as a simpler, convenient, and perhaps quite as efficacious a remedy, placebo, or amulet, as any pharmacist may provide.

To Remove Ink Stains.

When the finger is stained with ink and you have no sand soap in the house, just take a match, moisten it slightly and rub over the discolored parts. The stains will soon disappear.

Very often a black coat or dress looks shabby before it is really worn, owing to the "shine" which appears in various places. To remove this use ammonia and soap—say, one ounce of rock ammonia and half an ounce of castile soap in a pint of water. When quite dissolved dip a small sponge into the mixture and gently rub over the shiny spots. Sometimes a simple paste of fuller's earth and water will remedy the defect. Put on while moist, let it dry, and brush off after about four hours or so.

He Misunderstood.

She was a girl of the period of the first water, he a wee bit illiterate. He always tried hard never to betray his uncultured condition, sometimes with terrible results, as witness:

They sat in the concert room together eating apples, and as the band struck up an exceptionally pleasant air she exclaimed:

"Oh, what a sweet symphony, John!" "H'm!" answered John, solemnly chewing his fruit. "Yours may be mine's beastly sour!"

Good Stories All Old.

Lord Byron, in one of his prose writings, declared that there were only seven stories in the world, and that all other anecdotes and jokes were adaptations, variations or degenerations of the original seven.

Wendell Phillips, in his "Lost Arts," declares that all the good stories of the present day accredited to the Irish are really the product of the original Greeks.

TIME TO ACT

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit By Hopkinsville People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urinations, headaches and dizzy spells are frequent symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but generally return with greater intensity. Don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up their use until the desired results are obtained. Good work in Hopkinsville proves the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Miss L. A. Hester, Fifteenth and Clay Sts., Hopkinsville, says: "The pain in my back, caused by disordered kidneys was so severe some days that I often felt like lying down. If I walked any distance or exerted myself in any way, I was troubled most and if I caught cold, it made me miserable. In the morning, I felt stiff and sore and often found it hard to dress. Kidney weakness bothered me. I doctored but found little relief. Doan's Kidney Pills removed the pains in my back and the other kidney ailments left."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Miss Hester had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Our Indebtedness to Slaves.

To the emperors and popes of bygone ages, writes Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, the modern world is deeply indebted for treasures of art and architecture that without them never could have existed. It was only by the labor of unpaid and underfed slaves that the Coliseum, the magnificent arches, the enormous baths, the marvelous palaces could have been erected; and it was only through grinding the faces of the poor by taxes and enforced contributions that the splendid churches could have been built and their matchless decorations made possible. Popes, emperors and unfortunate victims have long since passed alike into dust, not all the pomp and circumstance of power being able to avert this common fate, and it matters not whether this dust has returned to the simple elements of earth or been preserved in gorgeous tombs.

Tip to the Jury.

The great John Philip Curran was once addressing a jury in an important case. During his speech he observed that the judge shook his head. Fearing the gesture should have an adverse influence on the jury, Curran warmed up for the moment and said: "I see, gentlemen, the motion of his lordship's head, but, believe me, if you remain here many days you will see that when his lordship shakes his head there's nothing in it."

MAKE MONEY FROM SEAWEED

Inhabitants of the Island of Guernsey Have "Farms" Regularly Alotted to Them.

The strangest "farms" are the seaweed farms of the Island of Guernsey. Held in common by all the farmers of the neighborhood, a "farmers' council" allot to each man making application a strip of the seashore, and all the seaweed that is cast up within these limits belongs to him.

Great bowlders mark the boundaries of the farms, which are from 200 to 600 yards of shore, and if any man gathers seaweed from any other man's farm or moves the bowlders to extend his boundaries the council takes his farm away from him and fines him besides. The seaweed harvest is at its height during the months of July and August, and all that a man need possess to gather it is a two-wheeled cart and one of the sturdy Guernsey ponies, a couple of long-handled pitchforks and a rake.

The seaweed or "varech," as the Guernsey people call it, is used as fertilizer on the inland farms, or is sold to manufacturing chemists, who extract iodine from it.

In the old days, but not now, the great Guernsey "harvest home," which was held usually in May, at the conclusion of the winter season, was the chief festival of that quaint Island. The last load was piled upon the carts, and the men and women in holiday dress marched at the head of their carts with their ponies gayly decked, singing old sea songs and dancing to the sound of the women's tambourines. From village to village they went until darkness came, and then a huge bonfire was lighted on the seashore and the "varech" season was officially declared at an end.

NICKNAME STUCK TO SENATOR

Frontiersman Responsible for Sobriquet by Which Missouri Statesman Was Always Known.

Senator Barton, one of the two first Missouri senators, was known as "Little Red." He got the name when he delivered a speech which made him famous throughout the country.

The senate chamber was crowded. Barton had taken side against the Jackson policies. His arraignment and condemnation of the administration for years ranked as one of the greatest speeches ever heard in the Senate. The audience became intensely excited. At the close, while people were crowding out of the gallery, there came a mighty shout:

"Hurrah for the little red!"

This was repeated again and again in the corridors of the capitol by the Missouri frontiersman who had been a listener. When the man became calm enough to explain he said the original "little red" was a game rooster he owned which could whip any fighting cock matched against him. When he heard Senator Barton "putting his licks" in the Jackson crowd and "bringing them down every flutter" he couldn't help thinking of the victories of his "little red." The newspapers took up the story and Barton went by the sobriquet of "Little Red."

Even Crabs Have Instinct.

Everyone has heard of the homing instinct of birds and of insects, but it is rather a surprise to be told that animals as low in the scale of nature as crabs have a similar instinct. The experiment has been tried in England of capturing crabs, marking them for identification, and releasing them long distances from their homes. The most interesting example was that of a male and female captured together in a trap and carefully marked, and then taken long distances away into another county and released at different places far apart from each other. Later the two were caught together again in a trap in their original home, showing that they had not only returned to their home, but had found each other and had again mated. The homing instinct had enabled them to go from the county of Lincolnshire back to their original home in York shire.

Indoor Gardens.

Rooms without growing plants are never really perfectly satisfactory in spite of the change of furniture from one place to another, its readjustment with fresh color from time to time. There must always be moments when the inanimate room bores or stifles one, but never a time when a plant lifting up its branches for the blossoming time will not win your response, your desire to aid it, your joy in its triumph.

Indeed, a very cold, bare and plain room can be made cozy and inviting by the introduction of a few blossoming plants. In the summer time they connect you with the garden, in the winter they shut you away from chill and frost, with color and fragrance they welcome your friends.—The Craftsman.

Use New Words.

The words we use every day make up our vocabulary, and it is a very good thing that our vocabulary should be as large as we can possibly make it. The best way to accomplish that is to use as many new words as possible as often as we can. Then we get accustomed to them and they are part of our vocabulary. But we must be sure that we understand their meaning, and that we use them in the right place. It is better to choose short words rather than long ones.

DAILY DAIRY

BEST TIME FOR FRESHENING

Several Good Reasons for Having Cows Drop Calves During Months of September and October.

It is generally held by breeders that it is best to have cows freshen in the months of September and October. There are several reasons for having cows calve at this time. First, the cow will produce more milk when she freshens in the fall instead of in the spring; second, the prices for dairy products are higher during the winter months than in summer; third, calves born in the fall may be turned out to pasture to better advantage than those born in the spring; they are older and more capable of protecting themselves from flies. When cows freshen at this season of the year, and it is desired to have them freshen the following year at the same time, it is necessary to carry them for three months before breeding. This is the usual practice among the best dairymen.

We would say that it would be better to begin breeding the animals the first of January if it is desired to have them freshen in the fall, for it is quite possible that it will require more than one breeding.—Heard's Dairymen.

CLEAN WATER IS NECESSARY

Artificial Pond Erected by Illinois Farmer Proves Quite Adequate for All Needs of Farm.

Good clean water is an essential necessity for the comfort and well-being of the dairy herd. Spring or well water, if good, is possibly the best, but when there is not a sufficient supply a good deep pond does not come amiss.

We have an artificial pond which supplies our needs in this direction, which is ordinarily from twelve to fourteen feet deep, cool and clean.

This pond was made by building a dam across a hollow in the pasture 45 feet wide at the bottom and wide enough at the top so a team could be driven across, says an Illinois writer in Farmers' Review. A wall on the inside of the dam was constructed of two-inch white oak boards to keep the wash from breaking the dam. The outlet is not over the dam, but on the side.

To accomplish this task three teams and four or five men were kept busy for three weeks. After the dam had settled it was built up to the necessary height twice at different intervals.

Here we row with a skiff at leisure, and have a good old-fashioned swim when we so desire. In the winter we have a place to skate, and a most excellent place to get an abundance of ice for the icehouse. Not only this, but the neighborhood at threshing time has the privilege of securing all the water they wish to use. When the wells go dry there is plenty there to fill the demand. It took a lot of hard labor and backache, but it has given us 12 years or more of service.

JUDGMENT IN BUYING COWS

If Animal Has Characteristic Color Markings for Her Breed She Is Always Easily Salable.

When buying cows, don't buy anything that won't sell well again in case you should want to do so. The best demand is for grade cows of the leading breeds, and if a cow of the characteristic color markings for her breed, she is easily salable. Of course, to sell a cow on the strength of her color alone is hardly fair to the buyer. Get them with color combined with production. The chances are, however, that once you have a nice looking cow that is a persistent milker you will not be tempted to part with her, no matter how short of money you may be.

Water Supply for Cows.

In winter the water supply for dairy cows should have close attention. If watered from an outdoor tank the water should have its chill removed before cows are allowed to drink it; if cows are watered in the barn, be sure the watering devices are free from silt that may render the water impure or unwholesome. By all means water cows regularly.

Dumb Chills and Fever.

Douglasville, Tex.—"Five years ago I was caught in the rain at the wrong time," writes Miss Edna Rutherford, of Douglasville, "and from that time was taken with dumb chills and fevers, and suffered more than I can tell. I tried everything that I thought would help, and had four different doctors, but got no relief, so I began to take Cardui. Now I feel better than in many months," Cardui does one thing, and does it well. That's the secret of its 50 years of success. As a tonic there is nothing in the drug store like it. As a remedy for women's ills it has no equal. Try it. Price, $1.00.

The Future Men.

A street car conductor in Kansas City said to a passenger as he car rattled past one of the playgrounds of that city: "Why, there's an entirely different bunch of kids when they are on that playground from what they were running the streets. They used to be hoppin' cars and puttin' things on the track and up to all sorts of deviltry. They seem to behave all right over there. Guess it's because they have something to do." FAIRM STOCK

NOTES FOR SWINE BREEDERS

Success With Pigs Cannot Be Attributed to Luck—Model Farm Should Have Natural Shade.

Progression is the order of the day, and in no direction is there more progress made than in the breeding and feeding of swine.

The time is past when we can consider a man's success in swine growing based upon luck.

Good drainage is essential on the hog farm, and no amount of tile or artificial draining will take the place of good natural drainage.

While hills and valleys make an ideal place for a hog farm, the herd should be kept as near to the source of the water as possible because of the danger of the stock becoming afflicted with cholera and other diseases caused by the stream being contaminated by swine further upstream.

A model breeding farm should be provided with a timber lot or large grove. There is no shade like natural shade, and trees soften the cold winds during the winter. Their value cannot be overestimated when properly utilized by the swine grower.

The breeder who would be successful in this age of close competition must have the closest and keenest discrimination of what is necessary to constitute an animal of individual merit, or more properly he must have firmly fixed in his mind the exact contour of a perfect pig. Then he must have an idea of the kind of breeding stock required to produce such a pig.

There are numerous breeds of swine, varying not only in size, color, shape, feeding qualities and general characteristics, but also in the quality of their product.

It is not the great big fat pig that brings home the money, but the pig that will weigh from 200 to 300 pounds at from six to ten months of age that captures the top prices.

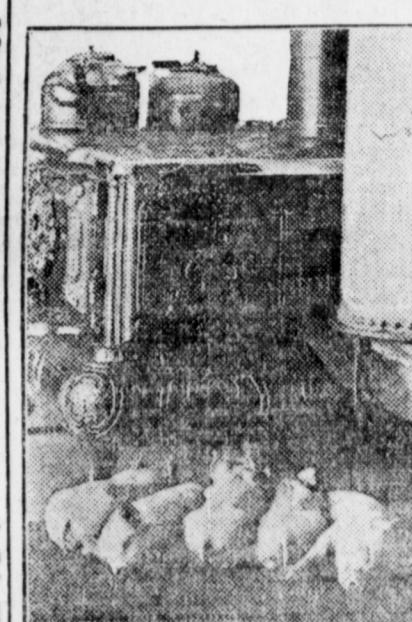

The breeding animals of the herd should receive the very best care and attention at all times, but with all of our knowledge of breeding and feeding, the science of swine growing is yet in its infancy.

KEEPING SWINE IN WINTER

Profit Can Be Made in Feeding Home Grown Feeds, Such as Clover, Alfalfa and Ensilage.

It is a common question to be asked if it will pay to winter swine. I can see but one way to winter swine at a reasonable cost, and it is to winter them on cheap feed as is possible, and make home-grown feeds, clover, alfalfa and ensilage, form a prominent part of the ration.

If we can winter an animal in this way and feed out only a small amount of grain I think we can make it profitable to keep a number of pigs through the winter and make fairly good gains, but it is a common occurrence to go on a farm in the spring and see 100 hogs which will weigh the same in May as they did in December, and all of the corn cribs empty.

Something is wrong when we see 1. St kind of hogs, but no one will deny the fact that the average feeder feeds out more feed than can be fed with a profit or else has a bunch of scrub pigs in the spring.

There is one advantage in winter pigs, we have them in time to feed out and reap the benefits of a good summer market, and in that manner receive considerable more money than we would if we were compelled to market them while the market was overstocked in November or December.—J. M. D.

Packing House Demands.

The demand at the packing houses is for leaner pork and smaller weight hogs. The feeders must enter to these requirements by feeding less corn and more protein feeds and shortening the fattening period.

Cloves Pick a Variety.
Feed tall pigs during winter a moderate ration of corn and supplement with bran, shorts and such other nitrogenous feeds as you have on hand to give variety to the ration.

VICK'S Croup and Pneumonia SALVE

DEFEATED BY RUSSELLVILLE

Hopkinsville High School Baseball Team Loses to Bethel 4 to 0.

Although the team fought hard and played guilt-edged baseball from start to finish, the Hopkinsville High School baseball team met defeat Sunday at the hands of Bethel College of Russellville. The final score stood 4 to 0. Bethel College has an exceptionally good team this year and always plays teams in a much higher class than high schools and the Hop-town boys deserve credit for holding them to so tight a score.

Pitcher House, who twirled for Russellville, is well-known in this locality as a slab artist and is considered by many to be the best amateur pitcher in Western Kentucky. Evans, who caught for Bethel, will be remembered as having caught for Cairo and Owensboro in the Kitty League.

Hopkinsville lost the game mainly through their inability to connect with Houses offerings. During the game eighteen H. H. S. batsmen were retired on strikes. In the seventh inning House turned over the box to Herndon, whom the high school immediately landed on for two hits. Herndon was taken out and Greenfield, Bethel's star heaver, came to the rescue and stopped the rally. The score:

Bethel	002	000	20x	4 6 0
H. H. S.	000	000	000	0 3 4

Batteries House, Greenfield, Herndon and Evans; Underwood and Moss.

Next Thursday High School plays Clarksville high school club here and will spend the week in practice to get in shape to put up a hard fight for the game.

GOVERNMENT OFFERS ADDITIONAL PUBLIC LAND.

The United States Reclamation Service announces the opening and availability of the latter part of April of a large number of desirable homesteads in the well known Shoshone irrigation project near Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming. This opening will mark the fifth unit to be offered the public in this district and will afford an excellent opportunity for the serious homemaker to secure a desirable 40 or 80 acre tract under the homestead law in a district of proven agricultural worth.

According to an announcement issued by Albert V. Leonard, settlement agent of the U. S. Reclamation Service in the Federal Bldg., the Government during the past six months has been swamped with appeals for suitable agricultural homesteads and the opening of the Shoshone lands will in a measure appease the demand for irrigable tracts in this section.

There is no question but that the recent peculiar business and economic conditions have been largely responsible for the increasing demand for and widespread interest in the "back to the land movement," states Mr. Leonard. "The Government is desirous of encouraging this laudable movement in every proper way and seeks to make readily available information concerning the opportunities which exist for the home-seeker. It is my desire that the Shoshone opening will attract an industrious class of people who will maintain the high standard of progressive farming which is rapidly transforming the Shoshone project into an agricultural community of accomplishment. With an excellent climate, fertile soil, ample water supply, and a splendid element with school, church and other community interest, this project should appeal strongly to prospective settlers and I would be very glad to supply such people with all necessary data."

Brother of Mrs. Quick.

SUPERINTENDENT IS WHIPPED

Brother of Little Girl Ordered Whipped Administers Beating to Pedagogue.

Decatur, Ala., April 11.—Prof. J. M. Collier, superintendent of the Decatur public schools was given a second flogging this afternoon by John W. Jones, son of T. M. Jones, one of the best known cotton men in the south. It is said Professor Collier attempted to have a little sister of Mr. Jones whipped by one of the teachers because she said she knew nothing to say in a debate. Hearing this, the child's brother jumped into his automobile, which was standing in front of his office, and was soon at the school house administering a sound flogging to the professor. It took several men to pull Mr. Jones off the professor. Professor Collier's wife fainted as her husband was being whipped.

ADJOURNED MEETING

Will Be Held By H. B. M. A.
Friday Night With Smoker and Speeches.

The meeting of the H. B. M. A. Friday night was not well attended and but little business was attempted, further than to take in 15 more new members, making 31 within the last two weeks. A special effort will be made to get out a full attendance at an adjourned meeting next Friday night. C. R. Clark, Ed C. Weathers and L. H. Davis were named as a committee to arrange a program of speeches. A smoker will be given and an effort will be made to get up a lively interest for the spring work.

U. S. Not U. S. A.

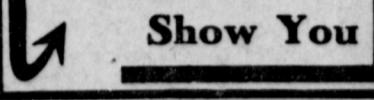

Do you know what is the proper abbreviation of the United States? It is U. S. It is not U. S. A. There is widespread and apparently utter ignorance of this fact. The initials U. S. A. is the official accepted abbreviation for United States army, and does not, under any possible conditions, ever mean United States of America. At this time, when so many manufacturers in this country are branding their goods as made in the United States, this is important. The brand U. S. A. upon anything means that it was manufactured in the United States army. "Made in U. S." is the brand which should be put upon all goods manufactured in this country.—Knickerbocker Press.

Brother Will Go.

Murray, Ky., April 9.—Joe T. Parker, brother of Ensign T. Albert Parker, who lost his life on submarine F-4 a few days ago off Honolulu harbor, after the sinking of the vessel, has left here for San Francisco, Cal., where he will join the diving crew which will go to Honolulu in a last effort to bring the submarine to the surface. Mr. Parker has given up all hope for the life of his brother, and his desire now is that the body may be recovered and brought here for interment.

Legal English.

The circumlocution of legal documents is the penalty of having a bilingual language and descends to us from these countries when the English and the Normans were slowly amalgamating into one people. So the two races, in the market place or in social converse, to make their meaning clearer, joined a French word to an English or vice versa. That is why in the prayer book words so often run in couples: "Humble and lowly," "acknowledge and confess," "assemble and meet together." The English was for the English, the Norman-French for the French. Chaucer is a great user of such bilingual phrases: "Hunting and venerie," "wright and carpenter," "care and heed." And that is whence lawyers get such talk as "aid and abet," "will and testament" and "use and wont."

Harry Remembers One.

Now is the time for the editors of the state to look up the records of candidates, especially for the general assembly, on matters in which the press people are directly interested. For instance let's have some information on the fellows who always vote to make the burdens of the newspapers harder to bear. Isn't Harry McCarty one of the boys who knows a few things along this line?—Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

In answer to the above inquiry we will state that among the candidates now seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky is a gentleman who at the legislative session of 1908 was unusually active in accomplishing the defeat of a measure endorsed by the Kentucky Press Association and in which every newspaper in the State was interested. He is one of the fellows who thought it worth while to make the "burdens of the newspapers harder to bear," and is well remembered by many of the active members of our association. Let's hear from some of the other boys.—Jessamine Journal.
